

BIRMINGHAM CITY UNIVERSITY

ACCESS AGREEMENT

1. Context

Birmingham City University, formerly The University of Central England in Birmingham, is a large, diverse urban university with a commitment to widening participation, graduate employability, professionally orientated teaching programmes, regional economic development and applied research and consultancy.

The university was formed through a process of merging separate institutions, and has roots stretching back to 1843. The six faculties, located on seven campuses across the city, deliver over 300 courses to more than 24,000 students. The catchment area extends from inner Birmingham to the Far East and the USA and local, regional and international partners play a key role in much of the University's work.

Over 60% of the full-time undergraduate students are drawn from greater Birmingham or the West Midlands and 44% of all students study part-time.

The University has a commitment to widening participation with successfully embedded strategies for outreach activities and pre-entry advice and guidance as well as active collaborative participation in regional Aimhigher projects.

2. Fee Limits

In 2009-10 the University proposes to set a maximum fee of £3,225 for all full-time first degree courses for UK and EU students. In subsequent years we propose to raise the fee by the inflationary increase, as determined by Parliament.

Fees for full-time HND, HNC, Foundation Year 0 and Foundation Degree courses will be set individually, to a maximum fee level of £2,906.

3. Bursaries and other financial support

Bursaries will be awarded on a sliding scale, with a maximum bursary of £523, to all students in receipt of a full or partial maintenance grant studying on a first degree with a course fee of £3,225.

4. Provision of information to students

Information on fees will be available to prospective students via the University's website, UCE Choices, (the University's pre-entry advice and guidance service) and other printed information, (please see below). A reference to the fee limit and bursary scheme will be placed in the university prospectus for 2009 entry, with the web address for students to access current information.

5. Outreach Work

Birmingham City University has always been committed to delivering and participating in outreach activities. UCE's Policy and Planning document for 2006 confirmed this statement in the UCE Character and Mission:

‘ UCE’s programmes and services should be available to all who can benefit from them, irrespective of social, economic, cultural and ethnic differences. UCE is active in reaching out to all parts of the community and will continue to be a major force in the struggle against social exclusion’.

Birmingham City University’s vision, set out in its Corporate Plan, 2007-2012, states that the University will be recognised as ‘a force for equality and inclusion’.

The University is engaged in a comprehensive outreach programme. These activities are listed in Appendix 1 and include summer schools, a student mentoring scheme and the Reach Out to Learning programme, all of which have established plans and funding for continuation and development which we do not view as additional activity.

Additional Outreach Work

Our policy of inclusion and active aspiration raising has placed the University above benchmark in the following areas, according to the HESA National Performance Indicators:

- Participation of mature students
- Participation of students from state schools
- Participation of students from NS-SEC social classes 4 to 7
- Participation of students from neighbourhoods with low participation in HE

Young FT First degree students

	BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
2006/2007 State Schools	97.5	93.4	4.1 significantly better
Social class	45.1	35.0	10.1 significantly better
Low part neighbourhoods	20.0	16.6	3.4 significantly better

Young FT Undergraduate students

	BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
2006/2007 State Schools	97.7	93.6	4.1 significantly better
Social class	45.9	35.6	10.3 significantly better
Low part neighbourhoods	15.6	11.4	4.2 significantly better

Young FT Other Undergraduate students

BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
-------	------------	-------------

2006/2007	State Schools	100	97.3	2.7
	Social class	60.3	46.0	14.3
	Low part neighbourhoods	26.6	23.9	2.7

Mature Full Time students

		BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
2005/2006	First degree	17.6	16.1	1.5
	Other undergraduates	19.3	14.3	5.0 significantly better

Part Time undergraduate students

		BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
2006/2007	Young	19.9	17.7	2.2
	All entrants	8.2	6.6	1.6

Proposed Activity:

We propose to maintain our position at or above benchmark in these areas and do not believe it will be necessary to engage in additional outreach activity to achieve this. However, should we fail to meet benchmark in any area, specific activity will be undertaken in order to rectify our position and appropriate funding from the additional income will be allocated for this.

Areas below benchmark:

The participation of full-time undergraduate students with disabilities in 2006-07 was at or below benchmark:

All undergraduate students

		BCU %	Benchmark%	Difference%
2006/2007	Full time first degree	4.8	5.2	-0.4
	Full time Undergraduate	4.8	4.8	0
	Part time Undergraduate	1.1	1.4	-0.3

Proposed Additional Activity to Increase the Participation of Students with Disabilities.

Although this is not statistically significant, the University proposes to improve the participation of students with disabilities to match or exceed benchmark. We will identify additional resources of 1% of the extra fee income to assist us in achieving this objective.

This activity will be co-ordinated by the University's Disability Service and Education Liaison departments and will develop an initiative that originated from a Hefce funded project; this produced information and discussion materials for students with disabilities and their tutors in FE colleges and was designed to support the students' transition from FE to HE. The new activity will produce materials for younger age groups and will target pupils in years 9, 10 and 11 in local schools. Campus visits and taster sessions for the target group will be run and support for students with disabilities to attend all aspiration raising activities for this age group, such as Summer Schools, subject taster sessions etc. will be developed.

The University has no plans to increase outreach activity beyond these levels and has a widening participation policy that places at its centre the on-course support of students recruited from under represented groups. We recognise and appreciate that these students have additional support needs if they are to progress through higher education, gain their undergraduate qualifications and aspire to graduate level employment. Therefore we are already committing widening participation funds to pastoral and learner support and initiatives to maximise student progression and retention. This commitment will continue.

Therefore, except in the area of disability, the University does not believe that additional expenditure on access measures will be necessary, other than for the bursary offer proposed in paragraph 3 above.

6. Milestones

As described above, the University will maintain its position at or above benchmark, as defined by the HESA National Performance Indicators, for the participation of mature students and students from state schools, from NS-SEC SOC classes 4-7, and from neighbourhoods with low participation in HE.

The University will seek to increase the participation of students with disabilities to the benchmark or above.

7. Institutional Monitoring Arrangements

All student statistics are received and analysed by the University's Senate. It will be the responsibility of Senate to monitor the University's progress towards its student participation targets and to recommend remedial action where necessary.
