6	Course Description
	Each route has its own webpage: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Fashion Promotion: http://www.bcu.ac.uk/courses/fashion-promotion-ma-2018-19 • Fashion Styling: http://www.bcu.ac.uk/courses/fashion-styling-ma-2018-19 • Cosmetics Branding and Promotion: http://www.bcu.ac.uk/courses/cosmetics-branding-and-promotion-ma-2018-19 These MA postgraduate courses in fashion are designed to sit alongside, share modules and find synergies with their sister courses on the Fashion and Textile Design Masters Programme. All courses share common elements of operation, structure and philosophy as well as sharing core theoretical elements and enrichment activities. Your Course is strongly industry focussed and projects are frequently entrepreneurial in character. The Course is also sufficiently flexible to allow for more theoretically focussed studies and an MA stage Dissertation module is an available option if you wish to progress to research degree study. In general, the FMMP allows for the pursuit of employment-related scholarship relevant to a diverse range of interconnected and broadly comparable practices within the fashion media industry. For dealing with the creative and professional ambitions of individual students, the Course has an embedded a system of project-managing your learning experience. Student-centred, and for the majority of students mainly focussed on practice, the full course (from PgCert to MA) takes you through a sequence of creative ideation and exploration (PgCert), contextual analysis and project management (PgDip), portfolio and career development (MA). There is a strong emphasis on developing independence (through you managing your own programme), self-discipline (through personal planning, goal and target setting), professional and creative ambition (through critical dialogue and self-evaluation). In summary, your Course focuses on the wider realms of the fashion industry and in particular its use of mass communication, visual and verbal messages and the conception of commercial fashion and fashionable identities manifested as products and brands. Your projects can reflect this through a mixture of academic formats and creative approaches ranging from business planning to theoretical analysis to the development of online shops. Your opportunities for self-direction and self-management play a key role in allowing you to address your personal interests and meeting personal requirements relating to employability or entrepreneurship. You are allowed to develop 'real world' simulations where teams of fashion professionals can collaborate and network. The highly International nature of the student cohort coupled with the knowledge sharing opportunities allow the development of global views of the fashion industry while developing a personal project that can still be very much focussed on your home market or local employment opportunities.
