14	Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy
	Learning & Teaching The learning and teaching methods are designed to encourage and support independent learning. Learners are provided with a guided pathway through the learning resources on our Virtual Learning Environment 'Moodle'. These resources include (but are not limited to): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Presentations - Quizzes, with feedback - External professional published articles, journals, standards - Practical exercises to apply knowledge Wherever possible real life case studies will be used to illustrate the learning. Learners are actively encouraged to share their working experiences in the direct teaching sessions. This enriches the learning experience and enables the apprentice to understand how the university teaching sits alongside their day to day role. The delivery pattern for each module begins with a 2 day Intensive Study Period (ISP) at the university, followed by 9 weekly on-line live sessions on a regular day of the week for 3 hours. The module then ends with a 1 day ISP on campus for exam preparation. This blended learning approach will help the learners to meet and network, thereby creating greater opportunities for peer support. The initial ISP days will predominantly be in the form of workshops of group activities allowing learners to explore and apply their experiences and understanding they have gained from prior reading provided on Moodle. This flexible blended approach also supports our learners who are working in locations across the UK. Formative feedback by the lecture team will be provided through these activities which can be used to help with the assessment.

All Learners have access to Moodle throughout their study and this includes a discussion forum where they can interact with each other and with the tutors on a group basis. Individual and group tutorials are also available by appointment to suit the learner's needs.

Learners are required to submit a learners reflection after each of the ISP days and at the end of the delivered learning material where they are encouraged to reflect on what they have learnt and how they will apply this in the workplace, in relation to a specific knowledge skill or behaviour for the module. These are reviewed by the module leader and advice/support is provided where necessary. This is used to develop English skills through written work as is required for a role in Internal Audit. The development of mathematical skills is module specific, which may relate to financial calculations, the use of spreadsheets, the ability to analyse data sets in later modules.

For the length of the course, learners are also provided with access to an on-line learning platform, which they are also expected to work through to support their study and in particular the sitting of the IIA's CIA exams.

This blended approach to learning supports the learner through a variety of learning opportunities which are both fixed and flexible in terms of timing and location.

Assessment Strategy

The assessment strategy used for the course mirrors those of the Certified Internal Auditor qualifications. For the first 4 modules the learner will sit a 2 hour, 100 multiple choice scenario based exam representing 90% of their final mark and a 500 word written reflection for the remaining 10% or a voiced over power point presentation depending on the module, to total 100%. For the fifth the learner will sit a 1-hour multiple choice exam, but also complete a piece of coursework based on a fictitious case study. The sixth module is completed by undertaking a 24-hour timed assessment where the learner will review a case study and produce a formal business report covering topical areas that are normally within the orbit of Internal Audit.

Personal Development

All learners benefit from the University's Careers + service which enables access to a wide range of support and guidance in order to encourage learners to aspire and succeed in their career ambitions as an internal audit professional and beyond.

In addition to the general guidance and signposting as documented above, each learner through progress reviews and tutor discussions will also review options available as they develop their career and provide additional support through these discussions and commentary provided back to the learner through their reflection documents. For example, the ability to go on and study CISA (Certificate in Information Systems Auditing) through ISACA® if they wish to consider specialising in Information Systems Auditing.
