Variations from the Academic Regulations: Postgraduate Taught – 2025/26 Academic Year

All postgraduate taught courses within the University are subject to the rules set out within the Academic Regulations: Postgraduate Taught. There are some courses, however, that have been granted a 'variation' to these standard regulations in order to adhere to Professional, Statutory or Regulatory Body requirements or to meet sector expectations.

A variation is essentially an approved change to the standard regulations for a particular course.

All courses with an approved variation to the Academic Regulations: Postgraduate Taught are detailed in this document and are organised by School. If you have any queries regarding an approved variation, please contact your course team in the first instance.

		Due to limited placement capacity, where students are repeating a stage of study and have previously passed the placement (or placement module) they will not repeat the placement or its assessment when repeating the stage. The original mark(s) will stand and will be combined with any marks achieved during the remainder of the repeat stage to calculate the overall stage mean.
		Where a student has failed a practice assessment in placement any offer of a repeat of the stage will be contingent on the availability of a placement and will take place at the next available opportunity, which will not necessarily be in the following academic year.
